

Suhail Khan

Suhail A. Khan is the Senior Fellow for Christian-Muslim Understanding at the Institute for Global Engagement.

He is a Washington, DC based attorney and has previously held many government positions. Khan served as Policy Director and Press Secretary for U.S. Congressman Tom Campbell (R-CA) where he worked closely on a variety of legislative initiatives, including religious freedom. After the 2000 election, he aided the White House Office of Public Liaison in the President's outreach to Asian-American communities. He also served as Assistant to the Secretary for Policy under U.S. Secretary Mary Peters at the U.S. Department of Transportation. More recently, Khan served as a senior political appointee with the Bush administration. While at the Department of Transportation, Khan was awarded the Secretary's Team Award in 2005 and the Gold Medal for Outstanding Achievement in 2007.

Khan serves on the boards of the American Conservative Union, the Islamic Free Market Institute, the Muslim Public Service Network, and the Indian American Republican Council. He has spoken at the Conservative Political Action Conference (CPAC), the Council for National Policy (CNP), the Harbour League, and the National Press Club. He has written opinion pieces for the Washington Post/Newsweek Forum on Faith.

He was born in Boulder, Colorado to parents who immigrated to the United States from southern India. Khan is the oldest of five children, grew up in California, earned his high school diploma from St. Lawrence Academy, a private Catholic college preparatory school in Santa Clara, in 1987. He later earned a B.A. in political science from University of California at Berkeley in 1991 and a J.D. from University of Iowa in 1995.